Report on A workshop on how to make a basic business plan

On 9th December 2022, PTVAIM's COEI in collaboration with an E-cell of M.L. Dahanukar College of Commerce organized a workshop on how to make a basic business plan (Entrepreneurship Development Program) from 10:30 am to 01:30 pm for undergrad students in the Keshavrao Ghaisas Auditorium. There were 45 students attending the session.

The workshop was facilitated by Dr. Sucheta Pawar. She is an Associate Professor of General Management and the Dean of COEI and PTVA's Institute of Management. And CMA Sarvottam Rege Vice President of PTVAIM's IIC.

The workshop began with a lecture on the basics of business and how it works. Dr. Sucheta went deep into how to understand the inner workings of business. She used plenty of audio-visuals to make the subject easier to understand. Later, she introduced the concept of problem solving and went into details – with a focus on how the devised solutions can be turned into a marketable business. She taught the participants of product placement and how to go about defending it to the greater masses, to justify the problem and the innovativeness of the proposed solution. Lastly, she divided students into groups and had them ideate on different problems and devise solutions to them.

The next part of the workshop was facilitated by CMA Sarvottam Rege, the Vice President of PTVAIM's IIC. He started the session by introducing the students to the monetary side of business. He taught them how to calculate the cost of a product and went gave detailed explanation of various external factors that can change and affect cost. He introduced the concept of revenue to the students and told them of the vital role it plays in business.

Several real-life examples were used to make the participants understand the importance of revenue. He taught the participants the basics of production and how to go about it for both start-ups and mature businesses. Lastly, he had an intensive Q&A session with the students to resolve doubts and queries they might have. The workshop was successful.
